

KEY MEN OF NEW NRA OPEN DRIVE TO SELL PUBLIC

"Selling Campaign" Is Planned On Educational Basis

JAMES L. O'NEILL
HEADS "BIG THREE"

Possibility of Further Legislation Hinted
By F. D. R.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 17.—The three key men of the midwest NRA set out today on an attempt to "sell"
its principles to the public, business and labor.

These men—headed by James L.
O'Neill, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company of New York—planned a selling campaign
on what was termed an "educational" basis—not a high pressure effort such as characterized the birth of the original blue eagle.
They may use a changed blue eagle
as their emblem.

Old NRA Expires
The old NRA expired last night at midnight. A few hours before that President Roosevelt in an executive order formally created the new "stop gap" NRA enacted by congress last week and named O'Neill as acting administrator.

A "possibility of further legislation" was held forth by the president. Just what its form would be was not disclosed, but observers believed it would depend largely upon the public reaction to economic data gathered by the new organization between now and next April when its life expires. There was still no word as to what the new deal's official attitude would be toward any attempt to amend the constitution to permit codes.

Surveys Old Codes
Leon C. Marshall, a member of the old recovery board, was appointed head of the "division of reviving" to survey the efforts of the old codes, demolished by the supreme court, and assemble the data.

A second division set up by the president was the "division of business cooperation" with Prentiss L.
Conley as its head. Its purpose will be "to aid in the voluntary maintenance by trade and industrial groups of standards of fair competition" and in the elimination of unfair competition.

RELIEF CHECKS ARE MAILED OUT

Payments Totalling $1,000 Are Forwarded To Clients By Salem Director

Approximately $1,000 in relief
checks to needy persons in Salem and Perry township were put in the mails on Sunday by City Welfare Director Mrs. Winifred Hill.

The relief money will be shared by 243 families. Mrs. Hill reported that the amount represents cash grocery orders for the last two weeks of June.

The present case load for Salem
and Perry township of 243 families is slightly lower than the corresponding figure of a month ago when 281 cases were listed at the city welfare office.

The city's relief load alone in the last 30 days, Mrs. Hill reported, dropped to 213 cases. Not much change in the city relief situation was forecast by Mrs. Hill today.

Thirty-eight persons from the city's relief rolls were reported on works division projects in the county at present.

Three Districts Are Quarantined; Cow Caused It All

Sebring, Beloit and Smith Township are under a dog quarantine, 11 residents are under treatment to prevent rabies, and the county is $308 poorer—all because a cow became ill down at Bandy's crossing on Memorial day.

Dr. George Y. Davis ordered the dog quarantine about two weeks ago, and all stray dogs have been rounded up. Other dogs must be kept on their owners' premises or let out on leashes until early in September.

The cow, the cause of it all, is in the bovine hereafter.

Meanwhile, 11 neighbors of Bandy's crossing have another month to wait before they know whether the treatments have fully protected them against the dreaded disease.

The cow's illness was first diagnosed as indigestion by a veterinary. The neighbors always ready to help out in such cases, came in and lent a friendly hand in getting the prescribed medicine down bossey's throat. The medicine did no good. Another veterinary was called.
He diagnosed the condition as rabies, extremely rare among cattle.
The cow was killed.

Dr. Davis will certify the cost of the 11 men's treatment to Mahoning county commissioners, who must pay. The charge is about $28
each.

ARBITRATION IN STRIKE ORDERED

Nebraska Governor Calls
For Action; Two
Deaths Listed

(By Associated Press)
OMAHA, Neb., June 17.—Swift arbitration of Omaha's street car strike under threat of military punishment for recalcitrant leaders was decreed here today by Governor R.
L. Cochran.

Arriving by plane in the area
where martial law was declared following strike riots which resulted in two deaths, Cochran handed two ultimatums to employ and company representatives. One specified they accept his six point arbitration program within 11 hours; the other that arbitration must be completed by midnight Thursday.

"If either party declines it must be responsible to the military authorities," he warned in a formal statement which he signed, not as governor, but as "commander in chief of the Nebraska national guard
in an area under martial law."

After the meeting, street car company representatives assured Gov.
Cochran they will present his demands to the company's directors at least an hour before the deadline he set, 11 a. m. (Eastern Standard time).

The second death resulting from strike riots last week occurred just as the meeting called by Cochran ended. Dewey R. McCoy, 35, died of head and chest wounds said to have been inflicted by police during a battle Friday night. John Duster, 24, was the first victim to die, and more than 150 other persons were injured.

Martial law was declared over the entire quarter of a million population of Omaha and South Omaha
Saturday by acting Governor Walter H. Jurgensen after local authorities appealed for troops to crush three days of rioting in South Omaha.

Mrs. Clara Phillips Free Woman Again

(By Associated Press)
TEHACHAPI, Calif., June 17.—
The gates of California's prison for women swung open today to send Clara Phillips, "hammer slayer" of nearly 15 years ago, into the world once again as a free woman.

"I am free," said Mrs. Phillips as she prepared to leave prison
on parole, "all I want is that people will leave me alone and give me an even break."

There was speculation among Mrs. Phillips' acquaintances as to whether her husband, Armour, who said when his wife was convicted of second degree murder that he would be waiting for her when she came from prison, would be on hand to greet her. Phillips was last reported in the east.

Mrs. Phillips declined to talk about her husband.

Mrs. Phillips, who has been in prison slightly more than 12 years,
was convicted of killing Mrs. Al-bera Meadows, a divorcee, whom she suspected of intimacy with her husband. She lured the victim to a secluded road where she beat her with a hammer.

"There's more kindness in the world behind the bars than in the world outside," she said, declaring her main reason for getting out on parole is that she wishes to see her mother.

Mrs. Phillips said she may follow up the dentistry she has been studying while a prisoner, and take the state examination.

Cause To Be Mad

BOSTON, June 17.—It wasn't the dent in the rear fender of Alex Truskolsky's automobile that made him so angry. It was what happened later.

He told police his car was in a slight collision with that of a woman who then asked to see his license. Truskolsky handed her his wallet, containing $20 in addition to his credentials.

Away sped the woman, wallet and
all.

Fishermen's Lines Tangle; One Injured

NEW YORK, June 17.—Jeremiah Findley, 42, got more than he bargained for when he went fishing in the Hudson river.

His line became tangled with that of another fisherman close by, and they both started pulling to get the lines apart.

The other's sinker suddenly flipped over and struck Findley on the head, knocking him unconscious.
He's in a hospital with a fractured

VEON REJOINS POLICE FORCE

Patrolman, Suspended
During Hearing, Back
At Work

Homer Veon, member of the Salem police force who was suspended from duty while grand juries of Tuscarawas and Columbiana counties were investigating indictments against him, returned to duty with the force Saturday night.

Veon, chief of Police Stoffer announced today, replaces Jess Pep-pel, who was serving during the pendency of the Veon case.

Veon was indicted by a Tusa-rawas county grand jury on a charge of breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling. He was released under $500 bond, which is still held by the court.

During the trial, the prosecuting
attorney of Tuscarawas county halted the case as a result of a technicality in the indictment, indicating at the time that he would ask a re-indictment in September.

However, in the event the bond of $500 is dismissed by the court, it is likely no further action will be taken.

Veon then was indicted by a Columbiana county grand jury on a charge of concealing stolen property but this indictment recently was nolleed by the court.

Girl Spies Confess All Face Execution

FOOCHOW, China, June 17.—
Death before a firing squad or under an executioner's axe, faced 15
girls today as the possible penalty for their activities as Communist spies.

Military authorities at Hui Chang informed the local garrison that the girls rounded up there were court martialed and "all confessed their guilt."

Dispatches asserted Hui Chang
authorities were pondering the penalty for the group. Chinese critics here said the girls had a fair chance to escape with their lives
but warned.

"Sex and beauty have not always in China stayed the executioner's axe or the firing squad."

Hui Chang advised said 15 "good looking young women volunteered for this dangerous (espionage) service among government troops."

The military said the girls dressed themselves in their best finery and came as courtesans in to the camp of the government armies.

The officers asserted the girls
preached Communism and apparently had begun to undermine the loyalty of government forces before they were captured and jailed.

WARNS AGAINST FREEDOM'S LOSS

Former President Hoover
Addresses Stanford
Graduates

(By Associated Press)
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal.,
June 17.—Nearly 1,600 graduates of Stanford university left the academic cloisters today with a warning from former President Hoover
that freedom must be zealously guarded.

Mr. Hoover was interrupted by applause from the 15,000 persons attending the university's commencement exercises yesterday
when he declared: "The first of social securities is freedom—freedom to men to worship, to think, to speak, to direct their energies, to develop their own talents and to be rewarded for their efforts."

His "Hot House" Methods
"Economic security is lost at the moment that freedom is sacrificed," warned Mr. Hoover, who referred critically to "hot-house methods" of restoring social growth "the economy of scarcity" and bureaucracy
in the course of his address.

"Any system which curtails these freedoms or stimulates to men, destroys the possibility of production which we know we must have to attain economic security."

"The safeguards of freedom lie in self-government. There never has been nor ever will be freedom when powers of government are lodged in a man or a group of men. Moreover, all history teaches us that even majorities cannot be trusted with the ark of freedom without checks. Constitutional government, the division of powers, are the only successful protections
the human race has devised. To transgress or to override them will weaken and finally destroy freedom itself and thereby undermine every hope of economic or social security."

Damage From Both Sides
"The hope of social security can be destroyed both from the right and the left. From the right come the abuses of monopoly, economic tyranny exploitation. . . . From the left come power-seeking job-holding bureaucracies. . . . The concentration of economic power and the concentration of political power are equally destructive."

Mr. Hoover also told the graduates, "social security must be builded upon a cult of work, not a cult of leisure."

At another point he said, "universal social security cannot be had by sudden inspirations or panaceas. . . ."

Lisbon Minister Honored at Mount

Tentative approval to the city's application for a federal loan and grant in the amount of $87,500 for the construction of a new city hall

licitor Lozier Caplan announced.

The solicitor was in receipt of a letter from L. A. Boulay, acting state PWA director, announcing the tentative approval, which, the letter indicated, was made in order that Salem might make application immediately to the state tax commission for permission to submit the question

CHURCH MARKS ITS 100TH YEAR

Canfield Presbyterians
Open Week's Observance

Inaugurating its hundredth year
in Canfield, the Canfield Presbyterian church opened its centennial celebration yesterday with four of its former pastors present.

The church grew out of the first community church which was established in 1804. Feeling that their members who had moved into the Western Reserve would desire the services of the church, the churches of Connecticut sent missionaries
into this district. One of them, Rev.
Joseph Badger, made his first appearance in this section in 1801, and the community church was organized three years later.

Thirty-one years later the Canfield
Presbyterian church, with 50
members, was formed, with Rev.
W. D. Stratton as the minister. A building was constructed. This location at W. Main st. and Wash-worth st. has been used by the church for the last 100 years, although the original structure has been re-modeled twice.

Build New Church
The need for a new building was felt at the turn of the century. The new church was dedicated in 1904—and the congregation was free of any debt.

The four former pastors who have been invited to speak are
Rev. O. S. Fowler of Wooster, Dr.
Robert E. Pugh of Lake Forest, Ill.; Rev. T. L. Kierman of Solon, and
Rev. J. C. Wright of Akron.

Rev. Fowler will open the centennial with a sermon Sunday morning. A historical service will feature the evening session. Pictures and other articles of interest to the congregation will be on display at this time.

To Present Pageant
The Westminster Auxiliary will present a pageant Wednesday evening, while Dr. Charles Zorbaugh of Columbus, coming as a guest from the Synod, will speak on "The Second Hundred Years" Friday evening. A cafeteria dinner for the public will be served from five to seven p. m.

Dr. Pugh will have charge of the morning service Sunday, June 23, which has been designated as homecoming day. A picnic dinner at the church will be followed by an informal afternoon service, which Rev. Wright will conduct. At this time visitors will be given an opportunity to exchange greetings and remembrances.

Present elders of the church are
A. A. Manchester, Dr. C. H. Campbell, F. C. Hunt, Arthur Kyle, H. J.
Beardsley and J. C. Hedge.

Woman Is Injured In Auto Accident

Only one person was hurt when two of three automobiles in an accident on Route 45, three miles south of Salem at 4:45 p. m. Sunday, overturned in a field adjoining the highway.

The injured person was Mrs. Annette Stryker, 31, of Cleveland, who was riding with her husband, E. R.
Stryker, who swerved from the road in order to avoid hitting another machine. She suffered minor cuts and bruises of the face and legs.

Previously a car driven by Harvey
Diehl of Pittsburgh, Pa., overturned
when it was forced from the road
by another car driven by Victor
Skok, of Cleveland, State Highway
Patrolmen J. E. Ivory and P. S.
VanAllen, who investigated, said
Diehl was uninjured.

A NEW SENATOR

Mild excitement will be provided this week when Rush D. Holt of West Virginia claims the right to be seated in the United States senate. Mr. Holt, elected last November, has been waiting for his 30th birthday, which falls on June 19.

There is opposition to the young senator-elect, most of it on the Republican side. But it should not be forgotten he is a Democrat. He defeated Henry D. Hatfield, a Republican. There isn't much danger that Mr. Holt's party will let him come to any harm.

It was the judgment of the founding fathers that a man's judgment couldn't be trusted until he was at least 30 years old. If he wanted to be a senator. If he wanted to be a representative, however, he was mature at the age of 25. Mr. Holt wanted to be a senator, unfortunately.

The age range in the senate at present stretches from 37 to 77. Sen. Russell of Georgia is the youngest; Sen. Glass of Virginia is the sage. Two senators are 40, two are 41 (Huey Long is one of them), one senator is 42 and one is 44. Eight others are less than 50 years old.

Seven senators are more than 70, four are 69 and one is 68. The average age of all of them is 58 years. If it means anything, Democratic senators average 57 years and Republicans slightly more than 60 years. The inclusion of Sen. Holt, of course, will bring the Democratic average down somewhat.

There are interesting possibilities in the fact he will enter the senate at the tender age of 30. He will attract more than ordinary attention, for one thing. If he cares to continue a legislative career and if West Virginia cares to reelect him seniority will begin to work in his favor while he is in the prime of life. The whole nation awaits eagerly the first sign that a man 30 years old is or is not capable of as good judgment as his elders. On the face of it, young Sen. Holt has a grand opportunity to prove something or other.

FOR SUPREME COURT BAITERS

The labor advisory board of NRA is the latest to bait the supreme court for its unfavorable opinion on the constitutionality of the national recovery act. For it and other supreme court baiters, the following course of reasoning is recommended:

First, the government of the United States is composed of three separate and theoretically independent branches, the executive, legislative and judicial. The supreme court is part of the judicial branch. Congress is the legislative branch. The president is the head of the executive branch.

Congress on the demand of the President, enacted a certain piece of legislation known as the recovery act. In the course of time there came before the supreme court the question of whether or not the judicial branch of the government would enforce the joint product of the executive and legislative branches.

The court decided it would not and could not enforce the recovery act, because it was contrary to the Constitution of the United States. That decision did not remove the recovery act from the statutes. It merely restrained federal courts from enforcing the provisions of the law. In other words, the court did not dictate to congress. It did, however, refuse to let congress force it to recognize an unconstitutional law.

The court did not interfere on the power of either the executive or legislative branches. It prevented infringement on its own power, thereby supporting the original division of power. Those who are trying to cut the ground from under the court's feet would do well to consider carefully the results if they are successful. The judicial branch has functioned as it was intended to function, independently.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, June 18

An eventful and particularly lively day, in both business and private affairs, is predicted from the predominant planetary influences. There may be bold, impetuous and turbulent activities in connection with new projects, but unguarded or too ardent tendencies should be suppressed in favor of tact and diplomacy. With such restraint and the wise counsel of those in place of power, all should thrive.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively, enterprising and probably exciting year. But it is one in which tempest and turbulence would prove a detrimental force.

A child born on this day will be lively, energetic, progressive and constructive but prone to over-enthusiasm and impulsive to its undoing.

Notable nativity: James Montgomery Flagg, artist.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, June 17.—Diary: Abroad and saw Gene Tunney bowling by. And came upon a fellow at 54th st. with cymbals strapped to his ankles and a bass drum to his back, clashing and booming as he danced madly about in the street for pitched coins. He told me he sometimes made $10 a day.

Home and a portfolio of modern French art from Frank Crowninshield and John T. McCutcheon sent me the most exquisite symphony of words ever I read. Then Floyd Gibbons popped in with photographs of his hacienda in Miami and I learned he ate his biggest meal at midnight, always wandering into a strange restaurant.

To dinner with my wife at The Colony, palavering

a moment with Mrs. Margaret Emerson and Herbert B. Swope and Jos. P. Kennedy. And John Baragwanath, gardenized and white tied, at a long side table looked as though he might be a guest of honor. So to Antoinette Perry's bon voyage to Margaret Pemberton.

No letter so yields to smooth alliteration in names as D. In the newspaper division there's Dorothy Dix and the former reporter Donald Dunbar. Then, of course, there are Doris Duke, Doris Doe, Donald Donahue, the gangster Dash Duval and in Louisville there used to be a romantically named school teacher, Della Downing Too, Daniel Defoe and Daniel Deronda. And the fictitious ones: Danny Deever, Deadeye Dick and that new character in the Nebb's strip, Donna Dean.

There are names of fictional characters that somehow after many readings become amazingly real. I think of Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn, D'Artagnan, Ethan Frome, Sherlock Holmes, Sir Miles Hendon and "Beauty" Steele. One thinks of these as real folk. On the other hand, all of the Dickens characters remain unreal. I think of them as characters who never come out of a book.

Personal nomination for the most enduring of the comic strip characters—Jiggs in George McManus's "Bringing Up Father."

And among the columnists whose fame endures especially in the middle west is the late Luke McLuke, of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Many columnist efforts today are variants of ideas he exploited. The following old gems are his: "Whoever called it near beer is a poor judge of distance" and "Prohibition has greatly changed our lives and habits. We used to get drunk down town and go home. Now we get drunk at home and go down town." Like Billy Ireland, the Ohio cartoonist, who died the other day, McLuke had many metropolitan offers but turned them down.

Among the billings in a 42d st burlesque house is a Fashion Plate Duo. Vaudeville always had several pairs of these polished performers, similarly billed. Foremost I think were McWatters and Tyson. Then there was a team called Kelly and Violette. He sang "Egypt" and "Nobody's Lookin'" but the Owl and the Moon." Violette, a genius for effulgence, had the Lillian Russell figure, the sweeping hat and a jewel bestudded shepherd's crook. Three times during the performance she changed her costume.

Although several weeks have passed, the ship news reporters are still disconsolate over the passing at sea of the cane-swinging Harry Acton. More than any other reporter of his time, he took the dull routine of ships going and coming and made it richly unpredictable. He was the first to sign a gangplank column. Every notable, departing or arriving, looked forward to his cheery rap on the cabin door. Charles M. Schwab told me he often had Acton's column clipped and sent wherever he was. Acton had a puckish attitude toward life and his talents, and I imagine that had he known he was to go to a better world he would have chosen the exit he made—while crossing the ocean.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York CityCorrect Flat Feet
RECENTLY THERE has been a marked increase in the number of cases of flat foot in children. This is a physical defect that often leads to much discomfort and even marked disability. If detected when the child is young and proper measures are taken, the condition can be completely overcome.

In reality flat foot, also spoken of as pronated foot, or fallen arch, is a sign of muscular weakness of the supporting arches of the foot. Many children are born with this weakness. Sometimes it may first appear during adult life. Then it is due, usually, to overweight, faulty posture, prolonged standing or walking, or the wearing of improper footwear.

Believed Hereditary
Since the condition often occurs in families, the weakness or tendency is believed to be hereditary. When it is known that one of the parents or grandparents suffered from this defect, it is advisable that the child's feet be inspected periodically. Upon the first sign of weakness of the arches, the necessary steps for correction should be taken.

Early recognition of flat foot in a child is of the utmost importance. When it is recognized in childhood and corrective measures are enforced, it is possible completely to remedy the defect. Flat foot in adults is more difficult to overcome and in most instances nothing better than mere relief can be offered. The most important thing in the treatment of flat foot in children is the choice of proper footwear. Children's shoes are usually chosen with allowance for growth and development of the feet. But it is important that the shoes fit properly and ample room for the toes is provided. Make sure that the arch fits snugly and that the heel is low and flat.

Wedge Is Benefit
The child with flat feet walks on the soles of his feet and usually turns his toes outward. In such a case great benefit is obtained by inserting a wedge in the inner side of the heel of the shoe. Where the flat foot is pronounced the wedge may be continued along the inner edge of the sole.

Such a wedge as I have in mind varies from one-sixteenth to one-fourth of an inch in thickness. This is determined by the degree of weakness. The wedge raises the inner part of the foot and throws the weight outward. This procedure strengthens the arch and helps to correct the fault.

Older children should be taught certain corrective exercises. There are many forms of exercise advised for flat foot. Your doctor will tell you about them. A simple exercise is rising on the toes, letting the weight rest on the outer margin of the sole and finally down on the heel. This procedure should be kept up until it has been done for from 10 to 20 times. It should never be carried to the point of fatigue. Increase the duration of the exercise as the muscles become stronger. It is a good plan to have the child do this just before bedtime, and with bare feet.

LANSING, Mich.—Somewhere in Michigan's north country, a wolverine is believed to be roaming. Louis F. Smith reported tracks similar to those of a wolverine, and Elmer Dalton saw a low, shaggy bear-like animal running near Newberry. Wolverines, it was believed, have long been extinct in Michigan.

WHOSE WIFE? A CYRUS K. MANTEL MURDER MYSTERY

by GLADYS SHAW ERSKINE AND IVAN FIRTH

SYNOPSIS
Lawrence Vane, noted portrait painter, is held as a material witness in connection with the murder of his bride of three months following the discovery of a headless nude body upon the terrace of his penthouse apartment. Three weeks before that happened, two of his friends—Wilbur Renton and Roger Thornley—were discussing their love affairs and Vane's recent marriage to Isobel Mackenzie who was well known to both. Renton's interest in Isobel had caused a break between him and Betty Potter, a pretty young newspaperwoman who lives in the apartment beneath the Lawrence Vane's. Thornley says that he and his wife Millie, a former show-girl, are leaving for Seattle soon. Renton calls on Betty to read his cause anew, now that Isobel had married. She tells him that they cannot marry and reluctantly admits that she had been in love with Vane. Renton bitterly denounces Isobel, exclaiming that he'd like to choke her to death. Betty is horrified by his words. Early the next morning, Wilbur Renton denies that he had anything to do about notifying the police concerning the Vane murder, and is worried privately because he had called on Betty Potter so close to the scene of that homicide. Inspector Ingles persuades Betty to consult her uncle, Cyrus K. Mantel, famous detective. She does so, and Uncle Cyrus reluctantly accepts the case. He and Inspector Ingles call on Vane in his Tombs cell. The prisoner tells his own story of what happened the night before, strongly maintaining his innocence. After examining the corpus delicti at the morgue, "Uncle Cyrus" leaves his police inspector friend and calls on the sophisticated proprietress of Kate Doyle's Club. Wilbur Renton is puzzled because the police claim he, or someone impersonating him, phoned them the tip which led to the murder discovery. Kate, night life celebrity, is now conversing with "Uncle Cyrus" about Isobel, the wife of Lawrence Vane.

CHAPTER XII
"Oh," Cyrus K. nodded, "so she ran up and down the scale that fast did she?"
"Ran in and out with the scalawags, you mean," Kate corrected, "and 'fast' is the word, Brother, when it refers to Isobel."
"So.... so.... fast is the word," Cyrus K. removed his pince-nez and gently stroked his right eyebrow with them. "So.... so...."
The pallid boy at the piano began to chant in a monotonous voice: "Come on, you kids, snap into it.... a little more pep there.... come on, snap into it...."
Kate said: "Cute kids, aren't they? I'm taking them out to the West coast on tour you know, that's why we're working out at this ungodly hour of the morning." She puffed reflectively. "Cute kids, she repeated. "Good looking, a swell floor show."
Mantel studied her quizzically. A remarkable woman, he thought, in her own particular line. Cute kids, good looking, swell floor shows. But Cyrus K. also knew the heart that beat beneath that spangled gown, and it was to that heart that he addressed his appeal.
"Kate," he said, "I'd be awfully grateful if you'd tell me all you know about Isobel Vane."
"Now, listen, Cyrus K.," Kate laughed. "What do you expect at this hour of the morning? 'All I know about Isobel?'"
"Well," Mantel countered. "Let's get started, and you can stop when you get tired talking."
"Okay, let's go!" Kate crushed her cigarette.
The pallid pianist swung around from the stool. "Ten minutes rest," he droned, "hop to it kids, and be back in time, and snap into it! That tune—get me? Snap into it!"
The little girls in their gingham check-out rompers scattered from the room like blossoms before a summer breeze.

"Now," said Cyrus K. "Tell me all you know, Kate."
Slowly Kate puffed her fresh cigarette. "I wish I knew less, Cyrus K.," she said soberly.
"What do you mean?"
"Sometimes it's a burden to know so much about the lives of other human beings," Kate assured him. She lifted a quick hand against his unspoken protest. "Oh! I know what they say about me," she said. "Kate, the Broadway Katerer," she quoted bitterly, "and it's true.... as far as it goes.... but.... you know Cyrus K. how I try to take care of my girls.... and how well I've done by so many of them? Don't you?"
He answered the pleading in her voice. "Of course, I know, Kate. Any one who really knows you, knows that."
Silence reigned for a minute, then:
"What can I tell you that will help you, Cyrus K.?"
"Just anything you know about Isobel Vane," came the steady answer.
"Well.... she came into my club often. Of course, you know that?"
"Yes, I know that. What I want to know is who were the men she came in with?"
"Kate laughed.
"You've heard the old song, haven't you? The Sweetheart of the Regiment? Well, believe me, they must have known Isobel!"
"What sort of men were they, Kate?"
"Rich ones," said Kate succinctly. "Do you remember the names of any of them?"
"Yes, some. There was young Lovelace, and 'Playboy' Johnston.... and old man Halliday.... and she threw her hands up in mock despair, "so many, what's the use....?"
"Thank Kate," Cyrus K. was earnest. "More recently. Who came in with her most?"
"Well.... there was Austin.... and Roger Thornley.... and Wilbur Renton. I really can't remember them all."
"Hmmm.... can you tell me anything about these men?"
"Austin everyone knows—just a big-time spender from a small town out West. The original of the Butter and Egg man. Roger Thornley.... she hesitated. "Roger Thornley.... a big handsome rube—the women go for him in a big way. He made trouble in here twice when he was in with Isobel. I had to have Yasha ease him out."
"What sort of trouble?"
"Oh, nothing in particular. Just seemed to get peevish with Isobel about something and got loud mouthed, and seemed to be spilling for a fight—and I prefer folks to look for their fights somewhere else."
Cyrus K. laughed and Kate looked at him questioning.
"Now you know, Cyrus K.," she said seriously, but with a twinkle in her blue eyes, "that I rarely have fights in here."
"Sure you don't, Kate," he leaned over and patted her hand. "You throw them out onto the curb first!"
They laughed together, and Kate began again on her list of Isobel's men and their characteristics as she knew them from observation.
"Old man Halliday...." she shrugged, lifted her eyebrows, and turned both palms upward in a gesture that spoke for itself.

The pallid youth struck a resounding chord on the piano, and two girls danced out onto the floor in a whirlwind of musical and muscular co-ordination.
Cyrus K. adjusted his pince-nez and studied them in apparent concentration.
"Quit thinking for a minute," Kate told him, "and really look at those two girls. That's the best act I've got. The Dane Sisters. The dark one is Donetta Dane and the blond is Gerry Gordon—beauties, both of them, and nice girls, and can they dance? Just ask me."
"Are they sisters?" Cyrus K. asked abstractedly.
"Oh! Come now," Kate challenged. "Did you ever know of a Broadway Sister act that had anything thicker than a contract between them. At that," she added, "these two room together and are always around together. You never see one without the other."
"Going on the tour with you?" Cyrus K. asked the question in a vague voice, his mind still occupied with its own thoughts.
"I'll say they are. Didn't I just tell you that they are the best act I've got?" Kate knew that he had hardly heard her, but she was used to his ways and she had a deep and sincere admiration for Cyrus K. Mantel, and all the finer things of life which he represented.
The two girls on the floor had finished their dervish-like entrance. The music changed and they went into routine of such beauty that even Mantel's preoccupied mind automatically took note of the graceful lines of their rhythmic movements.
"About these other men of Isobel's," he murmured. "What about Renton?"
"Wilbur Renton?" Kate smiled, and shrugged at the same time glancing swiftly at him beneath lowered lids.
"Yes, Wilbur Renton. He was quite a swain of Isobel's was he not?"
"He came here with her a lot, if that's what you mean."
"Was he very devoted to her?"
"Well...." Kate sighed. "It's hard to tell, you know. What looks like devotion under the shaded lights may turn out to be something else again. I've only got one way to gauge devotion here."
"What is that?"
"Money," she answered tersely.
"Judging by that scale he was plenty infatuated," Kate said. "He sure spent plenty cash on her.... here and elsewhere."
Cyrus K. removed his glasses and softly stroked his right eyebrow. "So?" he said gently. "So."
The Dane Sisters, out on the floor had finished their number, and had made as charming and scintillating an exit as though the empty tables had been filled with loudly applauding patrons. The group of little girls in their gingham rompers were back at it again, coached by the lanky youth, from around his hanging cigarette.

"Come on, kids!" he called. "snap into it.... wave those legs as though you meant it. Limber up.... limber up.... come on now.... snap into it. How d'ya think Kate's going to be able to say the good old ballyhoo: 'Every little gal just going on sixteen?'" he mimicked Kate's loudly hearty voice. "If you kids act like you was dyin' of rheumatism? Come on, snap into it, git goin'!"
Cyrus K. turned fully toward Kate.
"You have avoided one name," he said quietly. "You have failed to mention Lawrence Vane."
"Lawrence Vane?" Kate hesitated. "The artist? You mean the man that married Isobel, don't you Cyrus?"
"Don't stall, Kate. You know who I mean well enough, and I know that you left him out purposely. Come ahead, Kate, why didn't you tell me about him?"
"I'd rather not, Cyrus K.," she said slowly.
"He came in here, didn't he?"
"Yes."
"With Isobel?"
"No, never."
"Who with, then?" Mantel was puzzled.
Kate looked at him steadily.
"Lawrence Vane has been in here only a few times," she told him, "and he always came with the same girl."
"Well!" snapped Cyrus K. "Don't stall. Who was it he escorted—who was it?"
"Your niece Betty," Kate answered quietly.
As Betty read aloud to Wilbur Renton the post card from Millie and Roger Thornton, that Suky had brought in, she raised her glowing look to his, and the blaze that met her from Renton's usually lazy eyes made her catch her breath, and glance hastily away.
"I'm glad to know that anyone is happy just now," he gritted. "It may be a long time before some of us will recognize the word, excepting as a pleasant sound we were once familiar with."
Betty looked at him under veiled lids, and was shocked at the

TIRES MAY LOOK ALIKE ON THE OUTSIDE ON THE INSIDE THEY ARE DIFFERENT

HEAT on the inside created by friction is the main cause of blowouts. Firestone Tires are different on the inside—they are built with the patented extra process of Gum-Dipping that soaks every cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber, preventing internal friction and heat. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped.

Firestone performance records again emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof, but give greatest protection against skidding. There are three questions and answers that will solve the problem of what tires to buy:

QUESTION 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes. For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

QUESTION 2—"Are they blowout-proof?"

ANSWER—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had any tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles at 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

QUESTION 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER—Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile due to the tough wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This rugged tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread, a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequalled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

occupants of the car were injured
as the train dragged the machine

of the Greif Brothers Co., Coopers & Lytle, Cleveland, and his wife, were injured fatally when their auto collided with another near Winchester.

versity, who fell with her while walking across a dam, was rescued.

gielski, 15, fell from a canoe in the Maumee river. Two companions clung to the craft and were rescued.

ledo, drowned in Lake Erie off Bolles Harbor, near Monroe, Mich.

clinging to the rope two hours Miss Foy was rescued but no trace of Miss King was found.

Salem Merchants and Lake Placencia Lose County Games Sunday

Salineville Tops Quaker Nine, 8 to 3, While Lakers Bow To Strong East Liverpool Team, 9 to 4; Lisbon Loses To Kensington

EAST LIVERPOOL. Salineville, Kensington and East Palestine emerged winners in the Columbiana County Baseball league battles Sunday.

The Salem Merchants, playing at Salineville, came out on the losing side, 8-3, when Salineville bunched three runs in the seventh inning and another in the ninth. Pukalski and Willis hurled for Salem, while Scarny and Madison were on the mound for Salineville.

Sartick, shortstop for Salem, tumbled in catching a hard bouncer but still held the pill, an outstanding field play. In the eighth and ninth innings Madison struck out five out of six batters.

The Merchants will practice at 5 p. m. today at Centennial park for Wednesday's game with East Palestine at Centennial park.

Lake Placencia tumbled again yesterday on the home lot, bowing to the strong East Liverpool Pottery, 9 to 4. Mackall kept Placencia's 11 hits well spaced while the Ceramists bunched their hits to drive Ellis from the mound in the eighth.

Drakulich paced the losers at bat, getting three hits out of four times up. Mackall, Hull and Digman led the winners, each getting two out of four attempts. Hull also pounded out a homer in the second frame.

The Hanna Oils of Lisbon were knocked out of first place yesterday by virtue of a short right field that the Kensington lads were scored with three home runs among the briar bushes. The winning run was scored with two outs and Myers on third. On the third out Myers slid into a batted home plate and was called safe.

LOVELOCK WINS ONE MILE RACE

Sprint On Last Turn By New Zealander Leaves Cunningham Behind

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, June 17.—The classic one mile foot racing record remains in America today, but it's the only consolation left for Uncle Sam's foremost talent after a trouncing by New Zealand's Jack Lovelock at Princeton.

Lovelock, curly-headed medical student who had made a special trip from London to accept the challenge of his American rivals, ran the legs off Glenn Cunningham Saturday in the feature race of the second annual invitation meet under Tiger auspices.

Behind World Record
His time, 4:11.2, was four and a half seconds behind Cunningham's world record made on the same track a year ago, but the manner of his triumph was so convincing that 35,000 spectators left the sun-baked arena convinced that the slim barrier is the king of the world's milers.

Lovelock obviously ran with the sole idea of winning regardless of what the stopwatches showed. He followed Cunningham's pace until they came off the last turn, then opened up with a sprint that left the Kansas standing still. Cunningham faded so rapidly and unexpectedly in the stretch that he was overtaken by Bill Bonthron in a duel for second place, much to the joy of the Tiger partisans.

Lovelock had a ten-yard margin over "Bonny" at the finish, and it appeared he could have sliced several seconds off his time if he had stepped out earlier. He looked as good as the day he lowered the world record to 4:07.6 in a memorable duel with Bonthron on the same track in 1933.

Cunningham and his coach, Bill Gargis, offered no excuses, but whether it was the heat or not, the Kansas simply did not have his customary drive.

The race demonstrated the "four-minute mile" is still a dream. The hand-picked array of talent in six events failed to produce a world record. The closest to a record performance was the triumph of Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist university who ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.3 this was within a tenth of a second of the mark held by Percy Beard, who ran third to Allen, with Al Moreau of Louisiana second.

Charley Hornbostel of Indiana won the 880-yard run in 1:52.7.

Creameries and Greenford Split

Greenford bunched four hits and on top of two errors by the Smith Creamery team, beat the Dairies, 4 to 1, in the first game of a twin-bill Sunday. In the second game the Dairies bunched eight hits in the first inning for eight runs to spank Greenford, 12-10. Summary:

POLLY AND HER PALS

Theater Attractions

Will Rogers' new picture, "Doubting Thomas" is being shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow. Will has a good supporting cast that includes Billie Burke, Alison Skipworth, Gail Patrick and Sterling Holloway.

Will makes the best of his opportunity to air a few more choice bits of dry philosophy on life, love and politics in general, but the guffaws are furnished by two ladies in the cast, Billie Burke and Alison Skipworth.

Miss Burke is the devoted wife and homemaker for Will, a successful sausage manufacturer. Miss Skipworth is the self appointed leader of the village intelligentsia and is out to get culture at any cost. Being a lover of the drama she persuades Billie Burke that she is a second Bernhardt and owes more to her public than to her sausage loving husband.

Gail Patrick, Will's daughter-in-law to be, also has the theatrical bug and she and Miss Burke set Broadway as their goal after mild success in a home town performance. Will can't stand having his happy home broken up and his wife making a fool of herself so he hires a bogus director, Andrew Tombs, to make screen tests of them and one of himself as a crooner.

Will puts on a blonde wig and a large heaping of rouge and lipstick and does a burlesque of all crooners in general and Bing Crosby in particular.

Critics claim this to be the best of Will Rogers' pictures.

Return to Dark Age Is Feared By Hull

(By Associated Press)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 17.—A return to the "dark ages" of barbarism and savagery was foreseen here today by Secretary Hull if the nations of the world persist in pursuing a policy of "self-sufficiency."

Addressing the graduating class of the University of Michigan, Hull said there were but two alternatives—"either we go forward to other greater achievements of material and spiritual culture with a concomitant growth of every kind of material and spiritual interchange within each nation and as between nations, or we must recognize that our culture has reached its apex and is entering into definite decline and decay."

"In the latter case—and in that case only," he said, "every manner of relationship built up in preceding centuries will become loosened and dissolved and nations will again achieve 'self-sufficiency'—the self-sufficiency of barbarism and savagery."

"This last picture is an extreme but the directions, to my mind are clear. And the possibility of a return to the dark ages in some form is not, I think, historically excluded. Human history has known such cycles before."

The secretary of state asserted that while the United States was experiencing domestic recovery, "the situation in the international field is still deteriorating."
